The Royal Marine Hotel

Since 1828 a hotel has been situated on the site now occupied by the Royal Marine Hotel. Originally known as Hayes Royal Hotel, William Dargan builder of the Kingstown Railway bought out the Royal Hotel in 1863 and built the Royal Marine Hotel designed by John McCurdy who also designed many other buildings and churches of significance in Ireland during this period.

The old Hayes Royal Hotel was incorporated into the design, but later demolished in the 1860's. The newly developed Royal Marine first opened its doors for business in 1865 and has been a Dublin institution every since. The Royal Marine has hosted many Heads of State, Kings and Queens and celebrities including old blue eyes Frank Sinatra.

Hardy's Bar is named after the famous actors and world famous entertainment partners Laurel & Hardy who stayed in the old Royal Marine Hotel in 1953

In adding some new dishes to our menu, we have listened to the views of our customers, which are always welcome.
